FOOT-BALL AS PLAYED TO-DAY.

HAZARDUS AND DEMORALIZING TO STUDENTS AND LEADS ALL SPORTS IN FATALITIES.

So far as the brutality of foot-ball is concerned there can no longer be two sides to the question, writes Edward W. Bok in November's Littell's Living Age. The most unpromising advocates of the game have conceded this fact. If one game of college foot-ball differs from another it is purely and simply in its degree of brutality. How disastrous and fatal were these displays last year will be brought home more directly to people when by carefully computed figures it is shown that forty-six deaths resulted last year from collegiate games of foot-ball within a short period of four months. No record has, of course, been kept of broken ears, lost visions and other disfigurements. As a matter of fact, there is no sport practiced by any civilized nation which can equal a record of forty-six deaths in four months.

When we regard the effects upon the players of the constant use of things equally serious. Leaving the physical injuries entirely out of the question, the game of foot-ball, as it is played to-day, is an absolute detriment to the mental development of those who participate in it. I have, during the past six months, been at some pains to carefully inquire into the class standing of the "who" comprise college foot-ball teams, and the results were interesting. In two cases I found that the majority of the foot-ball players stood among the lowest in their classes, while in the other two instances this same fact was true of one-half of the members of the teams. Furthermore, the so-called "game" which is stored upon these college foot-ball players is directly injurious. Their lives are exploited, their portraits are printed, their every movement is chronicled until the subjects are made to feel a prominence which is at once preposterous and absurd. Before a boy is hardly out of his fitting school he is spoiled with a misplaced importance of himself, and mistaken "game" the evil effects of which he carries with him through his life. Nor is the effect on other students a wholesome one. It requires a strong, well-balanced mind, such as is rarely given to a young boy, for a young man to pursue a crafty game for knowledge when he is surrounded by the medium of an infected mind, and sees the men next to him become the talk of the country. It strikes for him, at the very outset of his career, a false note.

WITH UNCLE SAM'S WARSHIPS.

The stars are shining in a cloudless sky, a brisk breeze is blowing, and now and then the huge ship, with its masts to the rising sea, a fine spray bursts over the bow, flying through the air in tiny drops, just moistening our faces as we stand forward of the turret on the forecastle looking ahead into the night. Away over there on the horizon, off the starboard bow, a distant light, now hazy, now clear, now a misty glow, shows the lay of the land, beyond, just coming into range of our vision, another light flashes several times in succession, then disappears then glimmers forth again. One by one other lights are picked up. "Cape Code," says my companion, pointing out the light-house there. On we move, more slowly now, while the light gradually shows stronger and stronger, slipping further and further ahead. Shadowy groups gather forward where the huge cranes rise. The officer of the watch speaks by me, with friendly tones, the great ship heaves, and takes his stand near the huge anchor. The captain has the bridge, and we can hear his strong voice and the reply of the navigator, and can just make out their heads and shoulders, silhouetted against the sky, over the top of the high rail on the bridge.

The huge ship of the Minneapolis shows shadowy and dim on our port quarter, to starboard and a little astern the port light of the Raleigh burns dimly while directly in our wake, green and red, Montgomery's running lights glow like jewels in the dark setting of sea and sky. By the red light at the main-truck Minneapolis has stopped; white lights, opening and shutting like eyes, on the other ships, aloft, show that they are still under way but have slowed down. Hark! a dull splash, a distant booming roar, out flashes a bright light forward and half-way up the vague mass on our port quarter, Minneapolis has come to anchor. Red lights at the main-trucks of the other ships, they too have stopped, and almost simultaneously their anchors drop.

In the narrow waters of Boston Harbor the flagship lies straining at her huge anchors. The waters about her are thronged with river craft, loaded to the guns with crowd masses of humanity while the great ship herself is packed from stem to stern with a slowly moving mob of eight-seers. Huge floats are moored along the port side, and busy steamboats—a dozen of them or more—each a floating island of life and motion, are unloading or taking on ever-increasing crowds of passengers ceaselessly streaming over both gangways.

At the gangway opening on the quarter-deck a marine feels the aged and firm, the pretty girls, and little children over the side with all the traditional gallantry of his trade and keeping up a constant run of talk. "Off the other gangway please, sir. Come on, little one, up you go." Ask the officer of the rules, "lad," and you are off. Yea, 'tis the officer in the frock-coat in the middle of the crowd. Hold on there, you take your time! Do you want to crush that baby to death? All possible types of humanity, from the misanthropic and factory girl out for a holiday to the daintily dressed lady, from the river side tough to the young swell, crowd past, and find one another in eager curiosity. The amateur photographer is everywhere, even up in the highest top. The decks, that were so sparsely clean this morning, are soon spread with a sticky covering of dirt, while shining "bright-work" and polished gear are soon dimmed and blurred with the constant handling and thronging of hot moist hands. Tobacco juice stains the plank, no place is sacred, even the private quarters of officers and men are ruthlessly invaded.

PREVENTION OF TYPHOID FEVER.

Circular Issued by the STATE BOARD OF HEALTH, KENTUCKY.

To the Health Officials and People of Kentucky:

This Board desires to call the earnest attention of our health authorities and people to the gradually increasing prevalence of, and mortality from, typhoid fever, and to the growing importance of a constant resort to the methods which modern scientific researches have suggested for the prevention of this disease.

These preventive measures are of more importance to the State because directed against a disease especially prevalent and fatal among persons in the prime of life, who contribute most to the public wealth and prosperity. Considered purely as an economic problem, the feature of it probably least thought of by most people, the importance of this disease can scarcely be overestimated. Statistics show that ten persons are sick for every one that dies of this disease, and to say nothing of the cash value to the State of the prevention of all diseases, not excepting small pox. It is now known that, like cholera and dysentery, the germ or specific cause of this disease is contained in the discharges from the bowels of those sick of it, and that while other methods of introducing the poison into the system are possible, it most generally gains entrance through the medium of an infected water supply—usually the use of water polluted by fecal matter. This may be direct, from drinking such water, or indirect, as by using milk or other vessels of food or drink from cans or vessels washed in it. Ice, from an infected source, is also dangerous, since it has been proven that freezing does not destroy the infective principle.

While water from all sources of supply is liable to contamination, well water is especially so, whether located in city, town, summer watering place or country. Thus out of 314 cases occurring in Louisville in 1884, 284 of the persons used well water, and in 1885, 161 of the persons used well water, and in 1886, 161 of the persons used well water, and in 1887, 161 of the persons used well water, and in 1888, 161 of the persons used well water, and in 1889, 161 of the persons used well water, and in 1890, 161 of the persons used well water, and in ## An Important Office.

To properly fill its office and functions, it is important that the blood be pure. When it is in such a condition, the body is almost certain to be healthy. A complaint at this time is catarrh in some of its various forms. A slight cold develops the disease in the head. Droppings of corruption passing into the lungs bring on consumption. The only way to cure this disease is to purify the blood. The most delicate cases of catarrh yield to the medical powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla as if by magic, simply because it reaches the seat of the disease, and by purifying and vitalizing the blood, removes the cause. Not only does Hood's Sarsaparilla do this but it gives renewed vigor to the whole system, making it possible for good health to reign supreme.

An Artist in Various Ways.

The tramp shoe maker that stole Barney Kelley's money and shoes and who is now languishing in jail, is not only a good shoemaker and a slick citizen generally, but is something of an artist as well. He has decorated his cell prominently on the inside. He has with chalk drawn on the black walls a large cross with a human figure hanging on it in imitation of Christ being crucified. Besides it in a corner is a large round heater on which he has drawn a bird cage with a parrot sitting on its perch, which looks as natural as life. He says the parrot wakes him up every morning. On the outside of his cell are hung up shoes, flower pots and signs of shoes for sale, made or repaired, all done in chalk. It is all done up in artistic style and quite a contrast to the rest of the surroundings. He still wears the shoes he stole from Barney.

R. N. I. & B. Extension.

Concerning the recent Louisville delegation who viewed the live as far as Beattyville, the Enterprise says: One of them made the remark that a train of cars would be run to Beattyville on the R. N. I. & B. before the first day of November 1896. We are inclined to the opinion that there is something of this kind in store for Beattyville.

A Child Enjoys.

The pleasant flavor, gentle action and soothing effect of Syrup of Figs, when in need of a laxative, and if the father or mother be constipated or bilious, the most gratifying results follow its use; so that it is the best family remedy known, and every family should have a bottle on hand.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a running sound of imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous membrane.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular, free.

The Vote of the City Hall Precinct Thrown Out Because of Republican Ignorance.

The law requires the clerk of election to sign his name across the back of every ballot before giving it to the voter. A blank is provided for that purpose immediately under the facsimile of the County Clerk.

Election Clerk McSwain failed to endorse the ballots in City Hall precinct in Richmond, and the entire vote was thrown out last night. The majority was 175 Republicans.

J. B. Willis went to the polls in the morning and said he wanted to read the law to the officers. R. R. Burman, Republican judge of election, told him they knew the law and that Mr. Willis could get out, which he did.

It is simply astounding that the Republican officers would sit there all day and not discover the serious omission - a most important matter designed to prevent fraud. It is indeed wonderful that some Republican voter did not detect the omission. Democrats are not expected to see such blunders when made by Republicans in a Republican precinct.

The same Republicans who can't run a precinct election want to run the county, the State and the Nation. Well, well!
